INTRODUCTION

The introduction of a technological system called “blockchain” has provided a way for various parties and individuals to come to an agreement on the state of a database, without the involvement of a third party, a participant which is simply known as the middleman.

The provision of a decentralized ledger, with the idea of being self-administered, has further elevated the technology, into more acceptance. Blockchain provides strict and specific services ranging from the financial sector, tourism, payments, or securitization. This is done using the Blockchain Technological System without the involvement of any third party.

The blockchain has also made it with its traceability system, which allows the use of inbuilt tools called the “smart contracts” which could potentially automate manual processes, from compliance and claims processing, to distributing the contents of a will.

ROADMAP

NFT stands for non-fungible coin. Non-fungible refers to unique or special. Opposite to it, fungible things like currency notes, digital coins, etc. NFTs are similar to cryptocurrency units in that they are created and protected using blockchain technology.

Times are changing, and fans want different types of items to collect. More and more sports are moving their collectables to the blockchain and allowing platforms to use the power of blockchain for distributing new types of collection items in a decentralized manner.

Universal God Coin team will create a collection of exclusive NFTs, which will be available in our Universal God Coin NFT marketplace. Anyone can purchase those NFTs. The feature that makes our NFTs collection so unique is that it will represent the honourable memories of the club in the form of NFTs.

There is an opportunity for investors, NFT artists, and game lovers to use the platform to earn benefits.

Opportunity

Universal God Coin believes in growth. But growth with community. Universal God Coin is in it for the long haul. The decentralized community fosters long-term ecosystem development, resulting in actual use cases, greater rewards, and popularity beyond any temporary trends.

Growth

In general there is a growing desire for increasingly rich virtual gaming universes in which virtual asset ownership is important for gamer status and progression through a particular game. In addition, the time and effort expended by the gamer could be rewarded beyond simple enjoyment alone and through the exchange of in-game virtual items for real world value or for virtual items available in another game. This represents a challenge on two fronts. The first challenge is that a truly scalable and real or near real-time asset storage ledger is required for the gamer independent of the games they play. The second challenging requirement is to create a means of managing ownership and sharing in increasingly complex game universes, like those in typical MMO games. Over time and given the likely high value of many virtual assets and the gameplay itself, it will be critically important to ensure 'provably fair' gameplay and 'provably fair' item acquisition, which is not addressed in other emerging asset trading platforms

MODEL CHARACTERISTICS:

The following describes the key characteristics of the solution to the problem statement (earlier) in terms of gamers, developers and supporters. For gamers:

- Provably fair gameplay
- Reliability and stability (i.e. 24/7 uptime)
- Secure virtual asset ownership
- Rapid and easy trade and/or sharing of virtual assets and conversion to real world value (e.g. play to earn or Human Mining)
- Secure social networking
- Easy to use game app launcher
- Human readable wallet accounts and "addresses"

It should be noted that in blockchain gaming, provably fair gameplay is unique to Universal God Coin. Other asset trading platforms require developers to pre-create or spawn all items in a closed environment, which means that items can be printed at will.

Therefore items that have been acquired by provably fair methods will inherently have greater value. For developers:

- Fully-, partially-, or non-decentralized game development
- Supporting scalable massively multiplayer game development
- Virtual currencies and asset creation
- Ability to build gamer loyalty
- Broad game engine compatibility (e.g. Unity, Unreal, etc.)
- Exportable game engine templates
- Pre-built libraries
- Accepting and managing gamer payments simply, securely, and affordably

THANK
